Washington Office of Superintendent of PUBLIC INSTRUCTION

I support providing a well-rounded education for our students: the arts are an essential part of this. The arts teach to the whole child, engage all learning styles, and lead to the development of powerful learning habits that include such essential 21st Century Skills as creativity, collaboration, communication, and critical thinking. The arts also provide our students with keys to understanding the world around them and an array of strategies for learning, interpreting, and expressing their thoughts.

– Chris Reykdal, Superintendent of Public Instruction

The Arts are part of basic education under Washington state law and a requirement for high school graduation. The Arts are part of a well-rounded education in Federal law.

The Arts Promote Student Engagement & Well-Being

- Integrating Social Emotional Learning \(SEL\) into arts education is a researched practice that can be expanded to ensure well-being, academic progress and student engagement.
- All students should have access to quality arts education. Reach out and support students and families furthest from educational justice.
- A student developed survey (650+ respondents) reports that Washington students overwhelmingly consider arts education essential to their well-being.

The Arts Create a Passion for Learning

- Research supports that rigorous, standards-based learning in and through the arts provides unparalleled opportunities for growth and achievement.
- Arts instruction is uniquely suited to develop the whole child and build 21st-Century Skills.
- The arts promote project-based learning, interdisciplinary studies, and opportunities for meaningful engagement with families and the community.

The Arts Can be Delivered Safely and Effectively

- Arts classes can be delivered safely with appropriate modifications aligned with Washington State Department of Health guidelines.
- Arts classes (dance, media, music, theatre, visual arts) may look different this year, particularly the performing arts, with an emphasis on the artistic process over arts performances and exhibitions.
- Arts educators are an asset in planning and scheduling, they bring knowledge of students and facilities, which can enable the development of creative solutions.

Specific Considerations By Arts Discipline (Not Listed Above)

DANCE	Dance education provides essential physical activity through a creative lens, which is crucial for student physical, social, and emotional health. Dance instruction, both in-person and virtual, provides opportunities for learning and creative problem solving through multiple intelligences in a variety of content areas. Dance explores self/social identity, spatial relationships, non-verbal communication, cultural awareness, and current collective experiences relevant to students.
MEDIA	Immersed in a digital media culture, students show high interest and engagement in learning the media arts, a technology-driven art form that satisfies the human need to tell stories and explore ideas and emotions through communications, technologies, and digital formats. The media arts offer students choice and provides them a platform to elevate their voice. Fundamentals of media literacy and digital design can be taught with varied levels of technology available; from paper and pencil to digital tools and media.
MUSIC	Music classrooms create a compelling sense of community and shared self-worth. Stringed instruments and percussion instruments will be played wearing masks. Wind instruments will be played following health department guidelines and current research. Singing will be done following health department guidelines and current research. In person or virtually, music learning emphasizes musicianship, the role of music in human culture, listening, theory and composition.
THEATRE	Theatre can uniquely respond to current culture and amplify marginalized voices. Collaboration, student leadership, and complex problem solving are inherent to theatre. Theatre provides students a safe emotional outlet and develops human empathy. Process and conversation can be the focus, rather than emphasizing a finished performance. Theatre can be safely produced through online productions, radio dramas, and devised works. Skills that can be developed virtually include voice, acting for the camera, and self-reflection.
VISUAL ART	Visual art challenges students to envision their physical and imagined world in new ways, observe emotions, create, connect, and express their own stories. It connects us to each other, our past, and our future. Visual art's multi-sensory experience supports understanding of all other content areas. Visual art's methods and assessments work in synchronous and asynchronous environments. Culturally responsive and trauma-sensitive art instruction develops student voice.
