

Civil Rights Compliance Coordinator

(non-exhaustive list of self-training resources)

Self-training

For self-training, our office suggests reviewing the following training resources, to start. Whether attending a live training or reviewing written materials, Civil Rights Coordinators should maintain documentation of any relevant training they complete. Documentation of training should include training materials, certificates of attendance, agendas, or attestations of self-training—with a list of materials noted, along with approximate dates of review.

Civil Rights Coordinators

For Civil Rights Coordinators, OSPI offers a Training Report for tracking and reporting relevant civil rights training, along with a list of essential and additional Self-Guided Learning Resources. It is also worth reviewing:

- OSPI Sample Civil Rights Compliance Coordinator Job Description (last updated July 2014)
- Significant changes recently made to federal and state civil rights laws, including changes to the federal Title IX rules related to sexual harassment (2020) and to state law regarding gender inclusive schools (2019).
